A growing risk?

Today's story is one you've likely heard of before, but maybe haven't had happen to you personally. data shows that 63% of people have claimed that their TV remote has physically vanished after they put it down beside them while watching TV.

Accounts from our witnesses

As absurd as this sounds, there are people who truly think there is something paranormal going on with their television remote, with multiple people claiming they've experienced the event first hand.
“It's like it just dissapeared into thin air! I looked away for a second, and it was just... gone!”
-John, 38 years, plumber

“I moved blankets, cushions, even the couch itself, but it was nowhere to be found!”
-Jimmy, 43 years, accountant

A not so surprising conclusion?

In the end, were these people right? Were their television remotes really vanishing from reality? is YOUR own remote at jeopardy of falling victim?
the answer is... no. That's right folks, your television remote will not actually vanish on you, so rest assured that the next time you go to watch Game of Thrones, or Ferris Bueler's Day Off, your remote will be right there with you.

And remember, don't always believe 100% of what's on the internet. Tune in next time for more news that might just save your behind in a pinch!